PLAN A CASINO PARK

Commissioners Favor Idea of General Athletic Games.

SUGGESTED BY GOLF COURSE

The question of closing on Sunday brings out difference of opinion. Arguments advanced on both sides. Work on Links to Begin at Once. Grounds for Colored Population.

Following the establishment of a public golf course, it is the intention of the Commissioners, if their present plans mature, to install a public casino park in Rock Creek Park, near Brightwood reservoir, which will include football, gridiron, baseball diamonds, croquet grounds, and a general playground.

The Commissioners express belief that a recreation park, such as is proposed, can be established without asking for a special appropriation from Congress, as it is believed the appropriation for the maintenance of the park will cover all expenses.

Work on the golf course will begin at once. A nine-hole course, with several natural hazards, to which several artificial hazards will be added, will be constructed by the chain gang.

A clubhouse, it is understood, will be erected by private capital, and on private land in the vicinity of the golf course. It is the intention to erect an inexpensive but substantial house, containing a number of lockers for the use of those who desire to play a small rental for the same. As is usual in other cities, a small sum will be charged for the privilege of using the links.

May Not Be Open Sunday. Whether or not the park will be open to the devotees of the various games on Sunday promises to be an interesting question, and one which the Commissioners have not as yet considered.

Washington as a community is rigid in its observance of Sunday as is manifested by the closing of the theaters and ball parks on that day, although there is no police regulation governing them in this regard. Although baseball, golf and other athletic sports are played on the grounds of the various clubs and on open land in the suburbs of the city, the Commissioners will have to consider the sentiment of the community before placing their official approval on the playing of the games on Sunday in a park under their supervision.

On the other hand there are in the government departments and business houses of the city hundreds of persons who regard Sunday as a day of recreation, it being the only day they have to indulge in such pastimes.

Separate Grounds for Negroes. The fact that the bathing beach and playground under the supervision of the District government are closed on Sunday, may influence the Commissioners in adopting a similar policy with regard to the proposed casino park.

The question as to whether the colored residents of the city will be granted the privileges of the park has not as yet been considered. It is believed, however, that should there be sufficient enthusiasm among the colored residents, that suitable links could be constructed on the flat south of the White House, which are admirably suited for the purpose.

Commend Firemen's Bravery.

In accordance with a recommendation of Acting Chief Engineer F. J. Wagner, of the fire department, Commissioner Macfarland yesterday moved that Lieut. P. J. Sullivan and Private L. L. Woodard, of No. 3 truck company, be commended in writing for their bravery in rescuing Mr. and Mrs. Harry McKelton on the occasion of a fire at 129 F street last Saturday. Acting Chief Wagner, in his recommendation to the commissioners, said: "This rescue was accomplished only by the exercise of great skill and daring on the part of the men, and is a source of much gratification to me."

Examining Evidence in Police Case. The final verdict in the case of Capt. Matthews and Lieut. Mulhall, which was finished last Saturday, will hardly be given out before the last of the week. On November 1, 3,557 routes were in operation, and 2,335 petitions for service were pending. The number of regular rural delivery carriers employed is 36,571. Illinois still the leading State in the number of routes, having 2,774. Ohio is second with 2,475, and Iowa third with 2,236. The remainder of the appropriation available for new service during the present fiscal year is $1,475,822.

SAVING CONSUMPTIVES.

Committee on Prevention Beginning
Work for Coming Year.

The committee on the prevention of consumption recently commenced upon its canvass for funds for the season of 1906-07. Upon the success of this canvass will depend in large measure the work possible to be done in the coming season.

Last year's efforts of this committee showed in results. Thirty-one public meetings were held in churches, before clubs and fraternal organizations, schools and seminars. It is estimated that this lecture campaign reached directly and indirectly into about 1,500 homes.

The free dispensary for consumptives reports 34 dispensary cases examined, instructed, and treated during the past year.

The establishment of Starnott Sanatorium for the outdoor curative treatment of consumptives has been a most important work, and the results already plainly evident have been most reassuring to all who have watched the uplift of this much-needed institution. About fifty cases have been admitted to the institution since it was opened a year ago, several cases having shown gains of from twenty-five to thirty pounds and gains of from ten to fifteen pounds being the rule in cases which remain under treatment for a month or more.

The most noteworthy accomplishment of the past year has been the appropriation by Congress of $10,000 for the establishment of the much-needed municipal hospital for consumptives.

The work of this committee is to be extended still more vigorously during the coming year. Washington has an abnormally large consumptive population, many of whom are thoroughly ignorant of the simplest rules of health and utterly careless as to the manner in which they conduct themselves. A detailed account of all receipts and expenditures, which is open to general inspection, is on file in the committee's office, room 705 Curray Building.

MORE OPTIONS ARE SECURED

Seventh Street Real Estate Deal Is Progressing.

Purchase Rights Are Obtained, In Addition to Those Hitherto Reported, to Extent of $80,000.

Options were given yesterday on the property at the northeast corner of Seventh street and New York avenue, two lots near it, and two further down the street, to the agents of the syndicate that is working to secure the entire block. The total consideration named for the pieces of property named is $80,000.

Parties to the deal said yesterday that the options were good until March 1, 1907. At that time the purchasers will either announce their acceptance of the offer, or forfeit the options. The options also bind the owners, that in case the proposed purchasers accept the terms offered on or before July 1, 1907.

Nothing further can be learned concerning the persons seeking the property in this square, or the purpose to which the land will be put. Those seeking the options evade inquiries on the subject, always replying that they are not at liberty to divulge any information. It is evident that there is a serious desire on the part of somebody to secure title to all the property in the square, as the owner of every piece has been approached, not once, but several times, and urged to name a price at which he will sell.

When such a price has been named, the option has been signed in all but three cases. The terms of the options are identical in each case, showing that the purchase, if made, will be in the name of some one person or syndicate which wishes to improve the square in some manner similar to the way formerly mentioned in The Herald—that is, by a hotel, apartment house, department store, or as one report has it, by the removal of Center Market to that neighborhood.

Divers and Reagan Freed.

Harry Divers and Joan Reagan, who had been indicted by the grand jury on a charge of housebreaking and larceny, were acquitted by a jury in Criminal Court No. 2 yesterday. They proved an alibi, replying that they were formerly the store of John Brown, corner of Sixth and M streets northeast, on September 1, last, and stealing $3 in cash from the drawer.

Have Dropped Alexander Case.

It is authoritatively stated by the detective bureau that as far as their connection with the Alexander case goes, it is a dead issue. "Mrs. Alexander," said one of the officials last night, "is the person who has been robbed, and until we receive some further notification from her, we can certainly not interest ourselves in the case."

NEW LIGHTS FOR ECKINGTON

Theft of Ton of Coal Arouse the People to Action.Commissioners Will Replace Present
Lamps with 60-candlepower Gas
Lights to Frighten Burglars.

As the result of The Herald's exposure of the condition of the streets in Eckington, which were so dark and poorly lighted that it was possible for burglars to steal a ton of coal from the cellar of Sydney H. Cluxton, 57 Q street northeast, recently, the Commissioners have authorized a much-needed improvement in that neighborhood.

New gas lamps of 60 candlepower each will replace the present incandescent electric lamps of 24 candlepower each, and it is believed that the streets will be sufficiently well-lighted that burglars will no longer be tempted to steal by the wagon load.

Electrical Engineer Allen, to whom the matter was referred, said that in 1897, when the unsatisfactory conditions of the electric lights in Eckington, he recommended that they be replaced with gas lamps, but owing to the number of protests from the citizens' associations, in which it was represented that there would be a possible discontinuance of the private lighting service by the Potomac Electric Power Company, should that company be deprived of the public lighting, the order as passed by the Commissioners was revoked.

Since that time, Mr. Allen says, the situation has grown worse, as the trees have increased considerably in size, thereby seriously interfering with the streets.

In his report on the matter, Mr. Allen said: "In view of the inclosed complaint, and believing that a gas-lighting system, with lamps placed on alternate sides of the streets and at every street corner, would be a great improvement, and in view also of the fact that the District is now able for the first time to use mantle gas lights, I have the honor to renew my previous recommendation that gas lamps be substituted for the incandescent electric lamps. The old flat-lamp lamps were of approximately 22 candlepower, and were about equal in illuminating value to the present incandescent electric lights, which are of 24 candlepower. The new mantle gas lamps are of 60 candlepower, and have good diffusing qualities, making them particularly suitable for streets heavily shaded with trees. By the use of the gas lamps, the Commissioners can take action on this matter, I would recommend that the opinion of the corporation counsel be obtained whether the electric lighting company can legally be used to furnish current to any private premises in this or any other subdivision or locality, should the Commissioners discontinue the electric street lamps."

MACHINISTS RETURN TO WORK.

Southern Railway Employees Resume

Their Former Positions.

The six hundred striking machinists of the Southern Railway who have been out on strike for over a month returned to work yesterday.

This is the result of the telegraphic communication sent them on Saturday night by the president of the International Association of Machinists, James O'Connell, and the members of the committee appointed to plead their case with the officials of the Southern. The union men employed by the company to fill the vacancies were all discharged, after being paid a bonus by the road to compensate them.

The members of the committee who accompanied Mr. O'Connell to New York to attend the conference left town late last night. The matter of a further increase of the demands of the striking workmen were agreed to by the company. The men were granted the disputed increase, and the increase in their pay will date from September 1. The matter of a further increase has been submitted to a board of arbitration. If the men are allowed to increase, that, too, will date from September 1.

Violated Game Law.

Matthew Tierney, when arraigned in the juvenile court yesterday on a charge of violating the game laws of the District, admitted that he shot a red bird, but told the judge that he did not know that he was violating the law in doing so. The charge against him was dismissed, as Judge DeLoay was convinced that there was a lack of criminal intent on the part of the defendant.

Arbitrators Postpone Meeting.

The meeting of the board of arbitration appointed to settle the differences existing between the master and journeyman plumbers, staymakers and roofers, after having been postponed indefinitely, Assistant United States Attorney McNamara, representing the journeymen, and Mr. J. Easby-Smith, for the master plumbers, desired more time to go over the question of issues.

P., of this city, by invitation of the Baptist Ministers' Conference of Maryland, which met at Baltimore yesterday, presented a paper on the subject, "Salvation in the Twentieth Century." The delegates engaged in a discussion of the proposition advanced by Dr. Fernald. The speaker, while adhering to fundamentals of the creed, did not hesitate to plead for a new adaptation of the old ideas and for larger emphasis upon the social teachings of Jesus.

"DETECTIVE" IS FINED $100.

Alleged Sleuth from Indiana Fails to Satisfy Judge Mulhoney. G. M. Roberts, the pseudo-detective, was brought before Judge Mulhoney yesterday morning, and although he still insisted that he was a sleuth of no mean ability, he was forced to confess that he was also given to the use of archery.

The explanation that he was a member of the Webster Detective Agency of Indianapolis, and that this fact was sufficient to allow him to carry dangerous weapons did not appear logical to the judge, and he was fined $100, in default of which he will have to spend six months in the workhouse. Roberts was on the trail, he stated, of the murderer of Jesse Cox, and when he had secured the reward offered in that case, he said, he would immediately bring about the capture of the Alexandria murderer.
